Now consider is it for a left-handed or right handed person and whether you want the top or the barrel done.

It is always better to engrave before assembly of the pen, so the clip doesn't impede the engraving because of the slight curve involved. We require a sample turned barrel for setup & proof, testing material for laser results, color-fill, font size & placement. It will be centered on barrel unless otherwise requested.

All of the pens above had to be color filled with a small amount of black or brown so the engraving could be seen.

The type of pen that is multi-colored is the most difficult - it can be done but must be color-filled!

It is best to lightly coat the wood with a clear finish - so that the color fill can be wiped away from the un-engraved area and not fill in any wood grain.

Also take into consideration if the pen or wood has been color stained - such as a pine or white wood stained to look like rosewood such as the box above.

The engraved area would be an unattractive white area thus the color fill required. The box was not sealed or coated before engraving as you can see from the residue on the paint - if it had been sealed or coated, the residue would have wiped clean away, as below.

Acrylic pens can also be engraved & color filled and would be masked to limit the acrylic residue.
